Here We Are!

Prof. Natalia Aleksium

Prof. Natalia Aleksium is the Harry Rich Professor of Holocaust Studies at the University of Florida, Gainesville. She specializes in the social, political, and cultural history of modern East European Jewry and has written extensively on the history of the Jewish intelligentsia in East Central Europe, Polish-Jewish relations, modern Jewish historiography, the history of medicine, and of the Holocaust. She studied East European and Jewish history in Poland, where she received her first doctoral degree at Warsaw University, as well as Oxford, Jerusalem and New York, where she received her second doctoral degree at NYU. She published a monograph titled Where to? The Zionist Movement in Poland, 1944-1950 (in Polish) and numerous articles in Yad Vashem Studies, Polish Review, Dapim, East European Jewish Affairs, Studies in Contemporary Jewry, Polin, Gal Ed, East European Societies and Politics, Nashim and German History.

Dr. Aleksium coedited two volumes of Polin: Studies in Polish Jewry, devoted to the memory of the Holocaust and to the writing of Jewish history in Eastern Europe. Her book titled “Conscious History: Polish Jewish Historians before the Holocaust” will be published with Littman in 2019. She is currently working on two new books: about the so-called cadaver affair at European Universities in the interwar period and on a project dealing with daily lives of Jews in hiding in Galicia during the Holocaust.

Dr. Marta Ansilewska-Lehnstaedt

Dr. Marta Ansilewska-Lehnstaedt works as a research associate at the Gedenkstätte Stille Helden in Berlin, which commemorates Jewish men and women who resisted National Socialist persecution, and those who helped them to do so. In September 2010 she earned a degree in Jewish studies, East European studies and religious studies at the University of Potsdam, Germany. She was awarded the degree with honours. She also held a doctoral scholarship as a member of the Walther Rathenau Graduate School at the Moses Mendelssohn Centre in Potsdam. Her dissertation at the Humboldt-Universität of Berlin examines the identity of Polish “Holocaust Children” who survived the Second World War in hiding, acting as Polish Catholics.

Dr. Lior Alperovitch

Dr. Lior Alperovitch received his BA, MA and PhD Degrees from the Hebrew University in Jerusalem in General History, Jewish History and International Relations. He is presently completing a second MA in Jewish Philosophy at the Hebrew University. He wrote his doctoral dissertation with Prof. Moshe Zimmerman about "The Influence of the Relationship between Israel and the German Federal Republic on the Shaping of Holocaust Commemoration in Israel between 1948-1965".

Dr. Alperovitch's research focuses on three topics: the influence of Holocaust consciousness in Israeli society on forms of Holocaust commemoration; the uniqueness of the Holocaust as an unprecedented example of genocide; teaching Jewish law and keeping the commandments during the Holocaust. His articles have been published in academic and semi-academic publications.

Dr. Alperovitch teaches courses on the Holocaust and its commemoration at Bezalel, the Holon Institute of Technology, and he has a position in the Mandel Center for Educational Leadership.

Dr. Alperovitch studies "Teaching Jewish Law and Keeping the Commandments during the Holocaust" with focus on Polish Jewry

She was a Fulbright Fellow graduate student at Columbia University, where she obtained M.A. (1980), M.Phil. (1981), and Ph.D. (1990) in American history. She specialized in intellectual and political history of the post WWI period and the 1960s.

She has published a large number of articles and a few books, primarily on 20th Century United States, some on European history, and others on comparative modern history topics. She has presented papers at major conferences and congresses in the USA, Europe, Israel, and many other countries. She participated in the Salzburg and the Stuttgart seminars, and lectured and taught in various universities. She has served on several committees and boards of academic organizations, such as the Organization of American Historians, American Studies Association, and International Federation of Research on Women's History. Recently she has begun researching her family's history in Poland between the wars. This includes involvement of family members in Zionist organizations: Keren Kayemet, Tarbut school network, Dror youth movement, and the General Zionist party. In the Warsaw Ghetto, the study focuses on Oneg Shabat, as well as social assistance groups, and civil leadership of the underground.

Poland), in 1944-1945 (in Forest Spies); wide description of the contribution made by the Poles and Polish Jews to the European anti-Nazi resistance movement (in Fighters Across Frontiers); a revised picture of the Polish-British-German geopolitical triangle in 1939-1941, including the secret Polish-German talks and their disruption by the British intelligence (in Between Hitler and Churchill). Falkov lectures on WWII/Polish geopolitical, political, military and intelligence aspects in Israel and abroad.

Gil Faran

Gil Faran holds a Masters degree in public administration from Bar-Ilan University. He served in the Israeli army for 25 years. During a mission to Poland as part of "Witnesses in Uniform" (Nov. 2005) he decided to become a guide for educational groups travelling to Poland. In 2009 he completed the guide course and since then he has accompanied dozens of educational missions to Poland. He is a member of the "third generation", a grandson of Holocaust survivors and a "second generation" educational guide to Poland. His mother, Ruth Farbman is a veteran educational guide.

In 2010 he began a series of studies commemorating Holocaust victims. In his first study – "victims of the mass grave in Brzeszcze – the first victims of the Auschwitz Death March" he identified the victims buried in this grave, most of whom were Jewish. Consequently, a new memorial stone was set in July 2012 listing the victims. Since then he has been active in commemoration, and together with Polish groups and individuals, has been instrumental in establishing memorial for Holocaust victims in mass graves throughout Poland. His desire to give victims back their names led him to organize a project in the Auschwitz luggage room where visitors can obtain personal and family information about 20 owners of suitcases on view in Block 5.

He is the chairman of the Organization of Educational Mission Leaders to Poland and fosters Israeli-Polish cooperative commemorative ventures. In 2018 was awarded the "goodwill ambassador" award from the Polish Institute in Israel for his contribution to the Polish-Israeli dialogue.

She has also co-authored the exhibition and publication "The History of the Jews of Krakow. Sources from the collection of the National Archives in Krakow" (Krakow, 2018).

Ruth Weyl Geall

Ruth Weyl Geall was a Social Care professional for over 40 years, working as a senior planning, research and care manager for London local governments and children's and disability charities. After retiring she was an oral history interviewer, while volunteering on a number of oral history projects, recording interviews and developing exhibitions, documenting community projects and volunteering, about the lives and experiences of people with disabilities or from the LGBT community.

She has recently begun to explore the history and life stories associated with her family, on her father's side, German Jews from Reichenbach in Silesia, formerly Germany and now Dzierżoniów, Poland. There were never more than 150 German Jews living in the town before the War, while in the immediate post-War period, there were 17,500 Polish Jews and the town was called the Polish Jerusalem, with Yiddish theatres, schools and newspapers. There were also thousands of forced labourers from a concentration camp on the outskirts of town; the German population that was later forced to leave; refugee children from the Greek Civil War; and the current Polish population (displaced from the territories absorbed by the Soviet Union) who were moved into the town. By 1968 these multicultural communities had all but disappeared, and apart from the German architecture of the central town square, (and a surviving and restored Synagogue) it looks like any Polish town, with a population that is 98% Polish Catholic.

She is now involved with the town authorities, local schools and committed volunteers from around the world, who are helping to uncover the refugee and migration stories (with photographs) of the wide variety of people for whom Dzierżoniów was home in the 20th century.

Yael Paulina Robinson Gottfeld

Yael Paulina Robinson Gottfeld is a PhD candidate at the Chaim Rosenberg School of Jewish Studies and Archeology at the University of Tel Aviv. She received her M.A. degrees in Jewish Education from the Hebrew University in Jerusalem and in Hebrew Studies from the University of Warsaw. Her research focuses on the Holocaust aftermath in Poland. In her dissertation she examines the experiences of the mixed, Polish-Jewish families in Poland during the early post-war period.

She has been working in Yad Vashem Archives since 2010 and currently holds a position of the Head of the Research Section of the Reference and Information Department. She has been closely involved in developing the Research Section and frequently lectures on the use of Yad Vashem archival resources in academic research.

Lili Haber

Lili Haber is a social activist promoting the commemoration of the Heritage of the Jewish communities in Poland and Eastern Europe. She is an active board member and head of numerous associations and NGOs, Chairperson of the Forum of Polish Immigrants in Israel, of the Association of Cracowians in Israel, of the Phoenixes Association; Member of the Board and Executive Committee of the Center of Holocaust Survivors Organizations in Israel; Active director of The Foundation for the Preservation of Jewish Heritage in Poland (FODZ); Member of the Presidency of the International Auschwitz Committee; Secretary of the Israel-Poland Mental Health Association.

Born in 1947 in Cracow, Poland, first daughter of Holocaust survivors deported to the Cracow Ghetto and later incarcerated in the Plaszow concentration camp. Her father was saved by Oscar Schindler and her mother survived the Auschwitz-Birkenau concentration camp and the Death March to Ravensbruck and was liberated in Neustadt-Glewe, Germany.

In 1949 the family immigrated to Israel, settled in Holon. Served in an intelligence unit, studied Political Science and Sociology at the Hebrew University. Began a career in public relations serving as a senior aide to the spokesman of the Israeli National Insurance Institute. Later she completed professional training in programming and IT systems analysis and founded, with her husband, their own Software Company. In 2000 they sold their company to a large public conglomerate.

She is married Yehuda Haber since 1969 and has 3 children and 6 grandchildren.

Dr. Agnieszka Haska

Dr. Agnieszka Haska was born in Olsztyn, Poland in 1980. She wrote her thesis about "Hotel Polski in Warsaw, 1943" at the University of Warsaw and her dissertation about "Collaboration with the Third Reich in the Public Discourse of the Polish Underground Press, 1939-1945" at the Graduate School for Social Research at the Institute of Philosophy and Sociology of the Polish Academy of Sciences.

Today Dr. Haska is an academic lecturer at the Artes Liberales Faculty at the University of Warsaw and a member of the Polish Center for Holocaust Research at the Institute of Philosophy and Sociology of the Polish Academy of Sciences. She has collaborated with various Polish institutions and NGO and her knowledge and experience covers not only the academic but the educational fields.

Dr. Haska has written and edited several books and a number of articles about various aspects of the history of Polish Jewry during the Holocaust.

Dr. Tamir Hod

Dr. Tamir Hod is a historian and educator who specializes in the Israeli society and Holocaust remembrance and teaches at Tel Hai college, the Western Galilee College and the Kinneret Academic college. Dr. Hod is a member of the "Spiegel Fellows" and the "Polish Forum". His PhD research investigated the Demjanjuk Affair in Israel between the years 1986-1993. The research was written at Ben Gurion University under the guidance of Prof. Hanna Yablonka. For many years he worked as an educator in high-schools. His proximity to the educational world is expressed in his academic research that studied the educational system's coping mechanisms vis a vis Holocaust remembrance and the effect of this tragic event on the national identity of students in Israel.

Dr. Hod is writing several articles based on his doctorate. These include "The Demjanjuk Affair in Israel - why did we remember to forget?" that focuses on repressing historical events that are seen as a failure and "The Demjanjuk Affair - first prove, then educate" focusing on the way the educational system dealt with the Demjanjuk affair in Israel.

In addition to research and education, he is a musician who performs in different bands all around the country and lectures about famous Jewish musicians' lives and their compositions. These include Bob Dylan, Leonard Cohen, Simon & Garfunkel, Meir Ariel and others.

Dr. Hod is now investigating everyday life of the Ukrainian collaborators who were stationed at the Reinhard camps: Belzec, Sobibor, and Treblinka. His research tracks the perpetrators' actions and conversations and he examines the incentives and the circumstances that brought about this collaboration or in rare cases caused the refusal to collaborate.

Kamil Kopera

Perets Zucker

Perets Zucker was born in Israel in 1960, and holds a B.A. in Economics and Logistics from Bar-Ilan University. He is a graduate of the Command and Staff College at the IDF Academy. Currently, he is pursuing an M.A. at the Department of Jewish History and Contemporary Jewry at Bar Ilan University.

During WWII, his family was among the many refugees who fled from Poland (Galicia), were deported to the USSR, exiled to the labor camps in Siberia and later, wandered all the way to Kazakhstan. As a member of the second generation of Holocaust survivors, he chose to focus on this field of research, making the subject of his thesis "The Jewish Polish refugees in the Second World War in Kazakhstan".

Zucker served in the Israel Defense Forces for 25 years in a variety of senior command positions. During the following 16 years, he transitioned to the civil aviation sector at Israel Aerospace Industries where he held multiple business management and strategic planning positions.

Perets is deeply involved in genealogy and has set the commemoration and preservation of the memory of the Holocaust as his personal goal in research. His research focuses on Poland in general and Galicia in particular, as well as research on the population of Polish Jews refugees who stayed in the USSR during WWII, including his own family.

He currently volunteers for "Memory in the Living Room" and "Ambassadors of Memory in First Person", two organizations dedicated to preserving and perpetuating the memory of the Holocaust, including its victims and survivors. These organizations also strive to transform personal memories into a collective memory with the goal of raising public awareness and passing the memory of the Holocaust on to the next generations.

He also volunteers with "Giving a Face to the Fallen", an organization that investigates and commemorates fallen Israeli fighters whose life stories remain "unknown" since their deaths in battles before the establishment of the State of Israel, and during the War of Independence. Some of these soldiers were Holocaust survivors, and some were even declared "last descendants" of their families.
